

The coast artillery in New York stations, on secret orders from Gen. Wood, give a demonstration in rapid mobilization on Governors Island. Troops marching in review before Gen. Wood.

SOME OF CAMPAIGN
FOR NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS

"The Minute Men of 1916." Citizens learning the use of the army service rifle on the range at Winthrop, Md.

The greatest parade ever seen in the United States set the stamp of New York's approval yesterday on the policy of adequate national defence. The photographs on this page show a few of the widespread activities in the work of getting ready for any emergency that has been going on for many months. They illustrate how the red blood of America is answering the question embodied in the following verses:

SHALL IT BE THIS?
Furl that banner, for 'tis weary;
Round its staff 'tis drooping dreary;
Furl it, fold it—it is best;
For there's not a man to wave it,
And there's not a sword to save it,
And there's not one left to lave it,
And its foes now scorn and brave it.
Furl it, hide it—let it rest.
Abram J. Ryan.

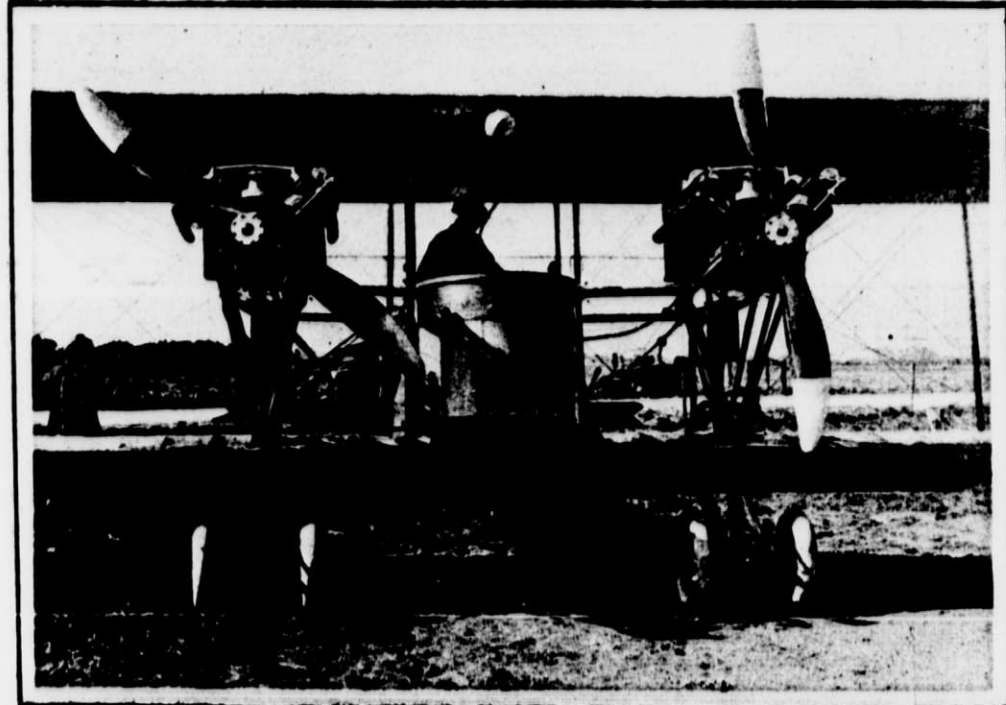

The National Guard manoeuvres at Van Cortlandt Park. Infantry advancing up a declivity under fire. Photo by Paul Thompson.

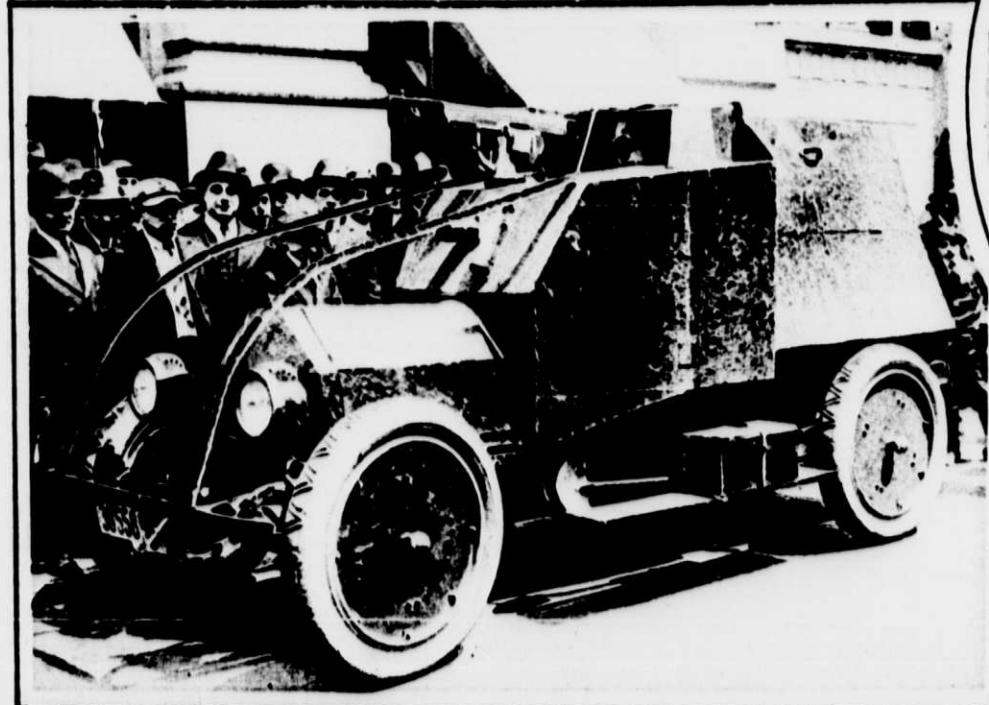

Major-Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, reviewing coast artillery at Governors Island mobilization. Copyright International Film Service.

New York National Guard Park. Soldiers of the taste of...

Army to get largest aeroplane. This huge machine, recently tried out at Sunnyside, Cal., carries three persons, three guns and five pounds useful load. Photo by International Film Service.

Armored automobile driven by Capt. W. H. Forrest of the Eighth Machine Gun Company of Massachusetts, to cross continent for preparedness. Copyright by Underwood & Underwood.

F. L. Upjohn's Flyaway III, one of the fast New York patrol mosquito fleet. She is the type of express...